This is the second Office action for application serial no. 10/804,317, Holding Device for a Cooking Container Lid, filed March 18, 2004.

Claim Rejections -35 USC S 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless —

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 28, 17-20, and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 4,364,537 to Helzer. The present invention reads on Helzer as follows: Helzer teaches a device for holding an article (100) comprising a mounting base. The mounting base comprises a center section (10), a left wing section (80), a right wing section (80'), and an elongated sliding (50). The center section defines a slot (defined between 12, 14, 16). The left wing section is connected with the center section, wherein the left wing section further comprises a first retainer clip (82). The right wing section is connected with the center section, wherein the right wing section further comprises a second retainer clip (82'). The sliding member further comprises a third retainer clip (56) and the sliding member both travels within and is retained within the slot. The center section is spaced apart from both the left wing section and the right wing section. The center section is connected with the left wing section along a first edge by a first transition step (26). The center section is connected with the right wing section along a second edge by a second transition step (26). The first, second, and third retainer clip each further comprises a corresponding shelf and corresponding lip, wherein each corresponding shelf is connected with and generally orthogonal to the right wing section, the left wing section and the sliding member respectively. Each corresponding lip is connected with and generally orthogonal to the respective corresponding shelf. The first retainer clip is oriented at a first angle with respect to an orientation of the third retainer clip and the second retainer clip is oriented at a second angle with respect to the orientation of the third retainer clip. The first angle is equal and opposite of the second angle. The sliding member further comprises a retention member (16), wherein the third retainer clip is disposed on a first end of the sliding member and the retention member is disposed on a second end of the sliding member. The retention member is adapted to engage the mounting base to arrest the travel of the sliding member with the slot. The device is composed of a plastic or composite material (column 4, line 3+).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 21 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Helzer in view of U.S. Patent No. 4,542,876 to Hogg. Helzer teaches the limitations of the base claim, excluding the device being composed of a metal or metal alloy, namely stainless steel. Hogg teaches a device for holding an article being form of stainless steel and/or plastic (see column 9, lines 19-33). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have made the material used by Helzer to have incorporated the material as taught by Hogg, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4-6 and 23 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 8-11 and 29 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
